On The Job.

One of the grounds for optimism in every community is that there is no heading off the right kind of business man. He will do everything to promote the welfare of his city, just as instinctively as a horse will keep the road on a dark night.

Thanksgiving services were held at the Lutheran church Thursday morning, and in the evening the young people of the church gave a box supper.

Milk Good For Poultry.

Sweet milk is a very valuable food for a variety of young animals on the farm. It is most usually fed to calves and pigs, but it may be fed with equal or greater profit to chickens, both young and old. On many farms in summer it is a difficult matter to keep milk sweet for more than a few hours, but for feeding poultry sour milk is as good, if not better, than real sweet milk. It may become sour and curdled and fed with as much effect as when it is an hour old. It is easily digestible and may be substituted for part of the other food. It is especially valuable for the young chicks in summer when they are growing, as it contains flesh and bone-forming material, and has enough water content to properly regulate the digestive organs. Also being nitrogenous, it is a good food for laying hens, but it is best to use it as a mixture with ground grains. Skim milk for all kinds of chickens is a comparatively safe food. They can be given all they will drink, yet it is not best to let it stand in drinking vessels where young chickens have access to it. It should be fed to young chickens with more care than old hens.

Women and Cigarettes.

Shall women smoke in public? The corporation council of New York City rules they may under the law, or rather the lack of law. Certain hotel proprietors take the position that if they wish to smoke it is their privilege, for restaurants were made for women, not women for restaurants; all of which is gallant and doubtless profitable. The position at present seems to be that while women are not restrained by law from open and public whiffing of cigarettes, the sentiment of a vast majority of women is strongly against the practice. In the long run the American woman has her sweet way, whether she votes or smokes, and it is a matter that women must eventually decide for themselves. In the final judgment men must stand back and defer to feminine opinion.

As a matter of taste it may be said that the American man deplores the feminine use of tobacco, either publicly or privately, and so far as a question of taste women in a majority are with him. Query: Should a few women of questionable taste defy the ideas and principles of the majority?—N.Y.A.
